Seminar paper from the year 2007 in the subject History Europe - Other Countries - Middle Ages, Early Modern Age, grade: 2, 0, Helmut Schmidt University - University of the Federal Armed Forces Hamburg, language: English, abstract: The British Telegraph published the article entitled Navy to cut its fleet by half on its cover on the 5th January 2007. The article stated that what was once worlds most formidable fleet, has to be reduced by half. The reason given for those major cuts is as often money. In the 17th century British sailors along with other European sailors formed the backbone of Tsar Peter the Firsts fleet. Even then a fleet cost a huge amount of money, not just building it but maintaining it in shape or even going to war. Peter was very willing to spend that money because his opinion was that every potentate leader of an army has one arm but the one who has a fleet also has two arms. Although times have changed since then the British are still concerned about the sizes of the fleets of other European nations: the...
