Fire Administration, National Fire Data Center, 1989 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)71354575 Subject: Fire investigation -- Case studies. Excerpt: . . . USFA-TR-032 May 1989 5 gasoline started to leak from the dome covers. The accident occurred on sloping property, as Route 7 crosses below Interstate 495 (see Appendix F). On notification at 0329, the Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department dispatched a Hazmat assignment consisting of two engines, one ladder company, the Hazmat unit, a heavy rescue squad Hazmat support unit, an ambulance, a battalion chief, and a foam unit (see Appendix C). On arrival five minutes later the first due engine officer requested an additional foam unit and a battalion chief. It was quickly ascertained that the driver of the vehicle had escaped and there was no immediate threat to life. Following Fairfax Countys SOP, the officer of the first arriving engine isolated the area and con-firmed that the product involved was indeed gasoline (see Appendix D). At 0352 the water supply was established and the Hazmat team arrived...
